Wolters Kluwer Tax and Accounting to Acquire TeamMate™

Internal Auditors to Benefit from Expanded Suite of Leading Solutions and Services from CCH

(Riverwoods, Ill. October 17, 2007) - Wolters Kluwer Tax and Accounting has signed an agreement to acquire from PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP, TeamMate - the leading integrated audit productivity software suite serving corporate internal audit departments and government agencies in 96 countries. Wolters Kluwer Tax and Accounting, a unit of Wolters Kluwer, is a leading provider of tax and accounting information, services and software solutions serving professionals worldwide under the CCH brand name.

Over 56,000 auditors from more than 1,500 organizations worldwide use TeamMate to increase the efficiency and productivity of the entire audit process including risk assessment, scheduling and timekeeping, workpaper preparation and review, report generation and audit issue tracking. Customers include Fortune 100 and Fortune 500 corporations, small- and medium-size enterprises and government agencies.

“The acquisition will be great news for internal audit professionals worldwide,” said Wolters Kluwer Tax and Accounting CEO Kevin Robert. “TeamMate customers will benefit from CCH’s premiere content, software and support as we build on the product excellence with which PricewaterhouseCoopers has served them, and also expand the range of services provided as part of the TeamMate suite. We are truly excited about the opportunity we have to extend our long history of tax and accounting leadership to internal audit professionals.”

“We’re pleased that TeamMate is now part of the CCH family,” said Anton van Wyk, PricewaterhouseCoopers’ Global Internal Audit Services Leader. “Following completion of the sale, PricewaterhouseCoopers will continue to use TeamMate as a component of our global Internal Audit practice and – given the size of our internal audit business – will become one of CCH’s largest TeamMate customers. Our clients will benefit from CCH’s ability to further develop and enhance TeamMate to retain the product’s world class status and meet market demand.”

CCH holds longstanding leadership in serving tax and accounting professionals around the world. The TeamMate acquisition will further advance CCH as the professional’s first choice for authoritative and innovative solutions and services in the corporate and government markets.

“TeamMate is an excellent fit for CCH businesses worldwide,” said Robert. “The acquisition advances our strategy to further grow in the corporate and government segments by offering a global suite of solutions to serve the internal audit market.”

The TeamMate suite consists of five key products that can be used independently or with other components of the suite. Those products are: TeamMate EWP, electronic workpaper system; TeamCentral, audit issues tracking; TeamRisk, risk assessment tool; TeamSchedule, advanced scheduling; and TeamMate TEC, time and expense tracking. TeamMate will join CCH’s portfolio of market-leading research and software solutions as a distinct product line.

There are approximately 40 PricewaterhouseCoopers employees who are dedicated to the TeamMate suite, and they are expected to join the Wolters Kluwer Tax and Accounting organization when the transaction closes.

“We are very excited about joining the CCH family,” said Mike Gowell, managing director for the TeamMate practice. “We’re bringing over the whole team and look forward to taking TeamMate to the next level by leveraging the content and technology of CCH in TeamMate.”

Closing of the acquisition is subject to a number of customary conditions, including satisfaction of all regulatory requirements. The parties expect the acquisition to be consummated during the next 30-60 days. Terms of the acquisition were not disclosed.
