

Impending Management Board changes Wavin

ZWOLLE, 9 August 2010- Wavin today announces that Management Board member Andy Taylor (55) will leave the company in order to pursue new opportunities. The Supervisory Board has decided to nominate Maarten Roef (46), currently Managing Director Wavin North West Europe, as new board member, subject to the approval of shareholders,

Andy Taylor has been a member of the Wavin Management Board since 2005, following the acquisition of Hepworth Building Products of which he was Managing Director.

Paul van den Hoek, Chairman of the Supervisory Board: "We thank Andy Taylor for all the good work he has done for Wavin. The acquisition of Hepworth in 2005 has significantly strengthened the Group's market position. In addition to the pivotal role he played in ensuring the successful integration of Hepworth into the Group, Andy has made a significant contribution to the further development of Wavin in the past five years. We fully respect his decision to pursue his career ambitions elsewhere and wish him every success for the future."

Maarten Roef will join the Management Board as Executive Vice President per 1 October.

Paul van den Hoek: "We are very pleased to nominate Maarten Roef to the Management Board. He has successfully led several Wavin companies. As Managing Director of the North West Europe region he integrated the Dutch, Belgian and German operations and as Managing Director of Wavin Overseas, Maarten developed a growth strategy for Wavin's export business. With more than ten years of extensive Wavin experience in several countries he is the right man for the job."
